SAND

Using two glasses, bottles or decanters different colored sand, the bride and groom pour into a single container (The Unity Vase) while reciting special statements or vows. As different colored sand melts into The Unity Vase will form a new color. The Unity Vase usually saved as a keepsake wedding ceremony and kept on display in the house of the couple.

CANDLES

Bride and groom affirm their love by the lighting of a unity candle, by having each side candle and lighting it together. This special candle then becomes their wedding or commitment anniversary candle to light this day every year from the rest of their lives. Their streams of light flow together and a single brighter light goes from their united being.

MAYAN

A Mayan ceremony is considered a link with the cosmos. Is a ritual of commitment to unite each other as long as the commitment remains. The Mayan Ritual is based in connection with the universe and their gods. This Mayan ceremony brings out the couple to the four cardinal points (north, south, east and west) to unite them to the feminine Mother Earth and the masculine Cosmic Energy.

CELTIC

This kind of ceremony is very meaningful; it takes place outside with nature to bless the union. The soul would manifest in the trees, in the water in the sun. The ceremony itself is a simple ritual called hand fasting. The bride and groom would stand facing each other holding hands, and they are bound by a ceremonial cord, as a symbol of the unity of the couple. Is a very romantic and original wedding ceremony.

BUTTERFLY

Butterflies represent Love, good wishes that return to us as true. If you give them as a present or set free at your wedding, you will be sharing a sign of dreams coming true, of good wishes and everlasting love.

VOWS RENOVATION

In this vows ceremony, you can include your children in a family union ceremony as well, and of course you may craft your own vows. And in this special day we would like to embrace that moment with you.

RINGS EXCHANGE

The Wedding Ring symbolizes the commitment between the couple. Also called the Alliance. The wedding ring is traditionally placed in the left hand, on the ring finger, because of the ancient belief that the vein in that finger goes directly to the heart. Then this custom was adopted by the Romans and Christians until it became part of the marriage ceremony.
